COVID-19 can be spread from person to person through sneezing, coughing, talking, or coming in contact with respiratory droplets that contain viral particles. COVID-19 can be very serious for those who have conditions like asthma, lung and heart disease and HIV and for older adults. However, it can also cause serious symptoms in anyone no matter their age or health history. We know that some people with COVID-19 have only had one or two mild symptoms. All people with COVID-19 symptoms should be tested, so watch for symptoms like fever, cough, and shortness of breath. Be sure to wear a mask or cloth face covering in public places to protect yourself and others.

What can I do to use drugs safely right now?

Wear a Mask Over Your Mouth and Nose

Whenever you are in public, you should wear a mask over your nose and mouth. This protects you and others from the spread of COVID-19. If we all wear a mask, the virus cannot spread as easily.

Avoid Crowded Spaces and Indoor Places

Stand at least 6 feet away from other people and don't shake their hands or hug them. If you feel sick, don't go to places like your local syringe service provider. In Rhode Island, these supplies can be delivered to you. Avoid indoor spaces where possible as the virus can spread easier indoors.

Try not to Share Supplies

This means not sharing e-cigs, cigarettes, pipes, bongs, joints, injection supplies, or nasal tubes such as straws. If possible, mix your drugs yourself or stay with the person who is preparing them for you.

Prevent an Overdose

This means having someone check in on you (by text or phone) if you are using drugs, using just one drug at a time, using fentanyl test strips and going slowly. Try a small amount as the drug batches are always changing. Have naloxone nearby and call 9-1-1 if you see someone overdosing. To use safely with someone else, make sure you are both wearing masks and staying six feet apart.

Stock up on supplies

It is important to have the supplies you need to stay safe when you use drugs. This includes naloxone, fentanyl test strips, clean needles and syringes, basic needs, and over the counter medications like ibuprofen.

Where can I get my safer drug use supplies?

You can still get the supplies that you need like naloxone, sterile syringes, and fentanyl test strips anywhere in the state. It is important to use your own supplies when using drugs because of how easy it is to spread COVID. Call or text for free delivery to your house, or to arrange a pickup.

Can I still get Medicated-Assisted Treatment (MAT)?

You can still get your Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT) such as methadone and buprenorphine. Learn more at: PreventOverdoseRI.org/MAT. To stay safe, MAT providers may have changed how they give out medication, such as changing hours or staggering when people can come in. You may also be able to increase the amount of methadone you can take home.

There are also changes that means it might be easier for you to receive MAT. You can now qualify for buprenorphine over the phone or in person. Call to learn more:
